ARAGON CASE IS TAKEN FROM JURY BY U. S. JUDGE

Holds That Belen Man, Who Sought Damages From Santa Fe Railway, Failed to Make Case.

Holding that Ignacio Aragon failed to make a case against the Santa Fe railway, Judge John C. Pollock of the United States district court, yesterday afternoon, directed the jury to find for the defendant railway company. Francis E. Wood, attorney for Aragon, entered a motion that the plaintiff be allowed to dismiss. Judge Pollock is expected to act upon this motion today. Capt. W. C. Reid, solicitor for the Santa Fe, represented the railway.

Aragon asked judgment for $5,000 against the Santa Fe because of injuries sustained when he was employed as a car inspector at Belen. Aragon lost two fingers of his left hand and one leg was broken when an engine bumped into string of cars under which he was crawling, according to his complaint.

Judge Abbott arrived here from Santa Fe last night to go to Bernalillo this morning.

"Texas" proved himself one of those falcon entertainers, built somewhat on the line of those magicians who find that a gift of gab is fifty per cent of the trick in entertaining the public. The big difference between the magician and "Texas," however, is that there is nothing secret about what he performs. If you don't believe the pipe is genuine stuff, he said, "take it and try to straighten it out after bending it." Ritchie was convincing—that was enough.

HARRISON CASE DECIDES AN OLD FAMILY QUARREL

Son Wins in Contest With Father for Big Estate; Litigation Has Dragged for Years in New Mexico Courts

The decision of the supreme court of New Mexico in the Harrison case, handed down a few days ago, while not the final step, is one of the most important steps in one of the most interesting civil cases ever tried in New Mexico. The case involved the title to a rich estate and brought to light a bitter family quarrel that has endured for years.

Dr. George W. Harrison, whose home is now in Los Angeles, formerly resided in Albuquerque, and still has valuable property interests here. Grover Harrison is the son of Dr. Harrison and Grandmother Perez de Harrison. Mrs. Harrison died while Grover was a small child, leaving a large estate. There was no will, and Dr. Harrison was appointed administrator.

When Grover Harrison had reached his majority, there was a settlement of the estate and certain property and money were turned over to him. Some time afterwards, complaint was made as to the terms of the settlement and another adjustment was made. Then, in 1911, Grover Harrison filed suit against his father, making sensational allegations and claiming a judgment for nearly $150,000.

The suit filed at that time lay dormant until about a year and a half ago, when an amendment covering 125 typewritten pages was filed. The case was tried in the district court of Bernalillo county and was decided in favor of the father. It was then taken to the supreme court and was argued last September, since which time it has been under consideration.

The result of the appeal to the supreme court was that the case was reversed and remanded, and will be up for trial at the next term. There were two important points in the appeal—one that Dr. Harrison, as guardian, had not made a sufficient disclosure of the assets of the estate in the settlement with his son, and the other that the son should inherit the estate of a sister who died shortly after the death of Mrs. Harrison. On the first point the court ruled with the plaintiff and on the second with the defendant.

Grover Harrison was represented by Catron & Catron, Judge John Baron Barr and George D. Howell of Hartford, Conn., and Dr. Harrison by Summers, Birchard and the late Judge E. A. Mann.

Do You Find Fault With Everybody?

An irritable, fault-finding disposition is often due to a disordered stomach. A man with good digestion is nearly always good natured. A great many have been permanently benefited by Chamberlain's Tablets after years of suffering. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally.
